MOSCOW (UPI) - Premier

Nikita Khrushchev, raising the stakes for a Berlin settlement in the wake of Russia's new space feats, demanded today that U.S., British and French troops get out of Berlin. He withdrew an earlier offer to let smaller NATO countries station troops in Berlin.

The jubilant Soviet leader, addressing a Red Square rally in honor of the Soviet space twins. also threatened anew to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany, but he did not set a deadline. For the first time, however,

Khrushchev spelled out a refusal to permit NATO troops to participate, even under United Nations auspices. The refusal was a sudden switch from a proposal made by Khrushchev last month that the Soviet Union would be willing to have a joint NATO-War-

HOLIDAY GROUNDING PROTESTED BY AIRLINES

OTTAWA (UPI)—Transport Minister Leon Balcer today considered a protest from airlines over plans to hold a U.S.-Canadian defence exercise, grounding all commercial aircraft, on the Sunday before Labor Day.

The Air Transport Association of Canada said some lines consider Labor Day as their second biggest day of the year. It said it had asked Balcer to see that airlines are consulted in the future on such air defence exercises.

The Lucky Neighbor

DRESIDENT KENNEDY'S promise to cut taxes drastically next year must delight Americans and make Canadians yearn for the same relief here. Alas, it is beyond our means.

Mr. Fleming must have promised the International Monetary Fund that he would begin to put his affairs in order. Certainly he announced a few weeks later that he would revise the April budget and cut expenditures by some $250 millions right away.

Canada is thus bound by international pledges to move toward a balanced budget within a reasonable period. But the obligations to its own interests are equally binding. The Next Campaign

'What Does He Think We Are?'

MR. JAMES E. BROWN, NEWly-elected Liberal member of Parliament for Brantford, Ontario, will ask Parliament, at its autumn session, to limit political campaign expenditures.

Apparently Mr. Brown is an optimist, for a Parliament obsessed with the survival or destruction of the government presumably will have little time for electoral reform. On the other hand, if we are heading for an early general election this may be the best time to curb the abuses so obvious in the election of last June. of last June.

All party leaders seem to agree, in the first place, that our campaigns are unnecessarily long and run out of ideas long before polling day. They would also agree, no doubt, that campaigns are ridiculously expensive, probably costing millions of dollars in party funds.

But the more sophisticated men bene, the more ambivalent is their attitude towards beards. Modern European history reveals, in this respect, a fluctuawhich merits the attention of serious students. Gerald Waring REPORTING

OTTAWA - The New Democrats' ingenious plan for getting Tommy Douglas into the Commons at the session's start has failed because of a basic flaw. And the person who found the flaw was the chief electoral officer, Nelson Castonguay.

Despite this, the New Dems haven't given up their effort to provide a seat for their seatless leader. On Monday Castonguay will receive a letter which authorizes him to issue a writ for a byelection in Burnaby-Coquitlam,

This is his second such letter. The "get Tommy in" plan, first reported in this column on July 12, entails the resignation of Erhart Regier as MP for Burnaby-Coquitlam under the never-before-used Section Seven of the House of Commons Act. This section covers the resignation of an MP when there is no Speaker of the Commons.

Under Section Seven, Regier tendered his resignation to two other MPs of his party. On July 13 they issued their own warrant for a byelection in Burnaby-Coquitlam. In accord with Section Seven, it was then incumbent upon Castonguay to issue a writ, but not until the government passed an -in-council setting a date for the by-

But Castonguay replied that Regier's election June 18 had been gazetted only on July 5. And the law provides that unsuccessful candidates have 28 days from date of gazetting in which to contest the election on grounds of unlawful election practices.

This 28-day period expired Aug. 2. But as Castonguay pointed out in a letter to Regier on July 31, Regier's resignation would not be in order until he complied with the law requiring all candidates to file statements

Regier filed this statement on Aug. 3. Then another section of the electoral law took effect, allowing defeated candidates 14 days in which to contest the election on the und of falsification of the expense ac-nt. So it was not until 12:01 a.m. today that Regier was legally free to tender his

Some legal authorities say there is no way an MP can resign between an election and the opening of the first session of the new Parliament. Other legal authorities say Section Seven fully covers this situation. Castonguay will probably decide to accept the warrant. But if the government acts immediately, the earliest date the byelection can be held is Oct. 9, the day after Thanksgiving. Douglas, if elected, would then have to wait two weeks before taking his seat in to wait two weeks before taking his seat in the House. And there is considerable doubt that this Parliament will last that long.

However, the government has six months in which to set a date for a byelection, and there is utterly no reason to suppose it would rush to get Douglas into the House. If Prime Minister Diefenbaker had wanted, he could have named Regier to an office of emolument under the Crown—say, assistant light-house keeper at $1 a year. That would have automatically vacated the seat of Burnaby-

While Douglas' chances of sitting in the Commons this session do not appear bright, New Democratic MPs do not consider their effort wasted. At least it tends to prove that Tommy Douglas' personal defeat in Regina has not weakened his MPs' loyalty to him as their leader

All writers are in the communications business, and if they lack outlets to the public they might just as well not exist. The profession of writing, as I see it, is a partnership between those who write and those who read, and each partner is equal to the other. Regardless of the success and popularity of television, the written word is still by far the most important branch of communications,

The critic is part of that audience, but set apart, by reason of one or more of the already mentioned attributes. Blame for the ineffectual and uninformed criticism that certainly does exist in Canada, must be laid I feel at the doors of editors who give little thought to qualifications when making assignments.

There are still far too many Canadian publications that refuse to take the arts seriously role in "Diamond Head."

Street Pianos Exalted: Become Collectors' Items

By ALAN WALKER

LONDON (CP) — Give him a barrel-organ for Christmas.

Canadian-born publisher Lord Beaverbrook received one for his recent 83rd birthday. The late King Feisal of Iraq bought one for his wife. The Countess of Darnley ordered one for her drawing room.

who has everything.

Tomasso repairs jewelry for his bread and butter, but his real love lies among the squatty pianos that crowd the back of his north London shop.

He are the man and three base strings. Selections must be rescored into simpler keys, and necessary remaining "black notes" must be dealt with by a process Tomasso affectionately calls "faking."

HOW MANY CLASS SUBSCRIPTIONS

In the contest of school classes for magazine subscriptions, Class A topped Class D by 20. Best score was 40 subscriptions. This was 28 more than the bottom tally. Class C beat Class B, whose score was just half of Class A. From these hints see if you can determine how many subscriptions each class obtained.

Ken Blaze is a sharp-eyed horseman who knows a good thing when he sees one.

At Vancouver Thursday, he saw one. Grey Cup. In seven years this gelding consistently finished where the money was. Against high society, too.

Grey Cup was entered Thursday in a $1,250 claimer. This means that anyone who had entered a horse at the meeting could take him by writing a cheque for $1,250—plus 5 per cent to help Mr. Bennett stay out of debt.

Since Grey Cup had never previously been entered for less than $1,750, claiming him was like stealing money. So thought Mr. Baze, a not too affluent operator.

He droped his cheque in the claim box and waited patiently and happily with a halter.

He droped his cheque in the claim box and waited patiently and happilly with a halter.

Coming out of the backstretch, Grey Cup made a strong move. Suddenly he stopped as if he had been hit on the chest by a boulder. He hobbled momentarily on three legs before apprentice jockey Randy Milis pulled him up. A van was called. Grey Cup was loaded and taken away to be humanely destroyed. Everyone—even the most unsentimental horseplayer—twinges when a horse breaks a leg and has to be put to sleep. But the fellow who felt it most Thursday was Ken Baze. The instant his cheque left his hand, Grey Cup was his.

You can insure a claim but the odds against a horse breaking down are so astronomical few bother to spend the

The public's passion for some sports and apathy toward others never fails to fascinate this operator.

At Capozzi's Mint, alias Empire Stadium, in Vancouver Thursday, 30,135 souls witnessed the Western Football Conference livestock show between Calgary and B.C.

Less than five miles away, at Capilano Stadium, the cast (players, wives, girl friends, children and stray dogs) almost outnumbered the patrons. Vancouver Mounties hung it on Portland Beavers 3-2 in 10 innings of competitive Pacific Coast League baseball. Who cared? Only 632 paid, that's who.

Mets and Mounties in Same Breath?

The night before in Victoria, slightly more than 1,700 paid to watch the Shamrocks drape New Westminster in a gasser (that's even better than a spine-tingler) of a playoff lacrosse game.

asser (that's even better than a spine-tingler) of a playour lacrosse game.

Where were the rest? Well, you know what they say about Victoria. Charge a nickel for anything and you're essured of a full house of empty pews.

In Vancouver the tariff is slightly higher for a Coast League ball game. They play a fair brand of rounders, too. The only place they play it better is in the National and American Leagues. Since that takes in the New York Mets and the Washington Senators, such a comparison might be giving the PCL all the worst of it.

and the Washington Senators, such a comparison might be giving the PCL all the worst of it.

There are some who say the Mounties can't draw flies, much less people, because they do not resemble Murderer's Row. Agreed. But for eight consecutive seasons the Lions have been less effective than the Green Bay Packers and they consistently needed a shoehorn to get the people into Empire Stadium even when disaster was assured.

Half-Time Show Better Than Team

The baseball Mounties over the years have been the it big in the majors . . . Brooks Robinson, Ron Hansen, Chuck Estrada. Conversely, no National Football League team has ever broken a blood vessel in its haste to acquire any of Baseball and football are pro endeavors while lacrosse is amateur—which means the players get their loot under rather than over the table. But, like baseball, lacrosse is easy to follow and pleasant to watch.

NEW WESTMINSTER-To stall or not to stall

Shamrocks' "stall"—the late action—had Victoria coach Arnold Ferguson reaching for the cardiograph.

So the fireworks, it turns out, didn't stop with the final whistle in a game that gave Westminster a 21 advantage in the best-of-seven semifinal.

No, indeed!

Westminster rattled in 14 straight goals.

Despite that total, goalies Geordie Johnston and Barry Forbes stood out. They were the only Victoria players to do so.

BOXLA BOX No. indeed!

VERBAL BARBS

A burning Jack Fulton exchanged verbal barbs with a seething Ferguson outside Queen's Park Arena.

Fulton, New Westminster's manager, apparently was quite disgusted with Victoria's tac-tics. If he would have had his way, his players would have tried to rub Victoria noses even leever into the dirt.

Fulton charged into the as semblage of press wags talk-ing to Ferguson.

"What are you going to tell New Westminster 2 0 0 the fans in Victoria?" Fulton asked. Then, without waiting for an answer and nodding at Ferguson: "That's a disgrace
... for a guy who put in 15 good years in lacrosse to try

CAME TO WIN'

The exchange has to be a "no decision" verdict because neither Fulton nor Ferguson reached a point of swinging at each other. And, in reply to Westminster's manager, Ferguson was of the opinion that "we came over to win a lacrosse game . . . and not please your fans."

Game No. 4 goes Monday, in Victoria's Memorial Arena, and one suspects Ferguson wouldn't mind dressing for that one-if Fulton also comes out in strip.

Meanwhile, league commis sioner Tom Gordon was apologizing to everybody about nothing, and doing just that.

WASTED WARNING

Gordon-appointed referees (speaking of apologies) also took dim view of Victoria stall-ing. Bill Stuart called both coaches to the floor after the first quarter and informed Fergie that there is a rule about "stalling."

Weatherman Bill Mackie, wringing his hands as August continues to drown in rain, could only predict more of the same for the weekend.

"This unsettled type of weather is going to continue for the next couple of days," he said. "It should be mainly cloudy for tonight and Sunday, with a period of rain overnight and a few showers Sunday,"

He held out hope that there might be a short priod of sunshine following the overnight rain, but predicted "more rain" on Monday.

I would bleed for him more freely, though, if he would spend less time grumbling about his real and fancied troubles and more in policing his trade for the few operators whose rural slums are a blotch on the B.C. tourist industry's otherwise good record.

Every business has its harks, tourism included. sharks, tourism included. Too often, a joint of the sort I laid out for you Thursday—with those four government stars on its sign—is run as a coney-catcher, with minimum service—and upkeep, to supplement an already-adequate family income.

Most of the few who operate such traps, however, aren't predators but men and women striving, sometimes desperately, to wring a living from a tricky trade they should never have invaded. Some of them stagyaded. Some of them stag-ger along under a crushing mortgage load. When they collapse, other cash-poor optimists with the same dream of easy money are waiting to take over. delegates to the 21st general synod at Queen's University here.

The 400-odd laymen and clergy who meet Aug. 22 for the opening service in St. George's Cathedral—a stone's throw from the site of the first Anglican church in Upper Canada—later will face several important decisions.

Among topics scheduled for debate are:

A proposal to cut membership in the lower house of the general synod, legislative body of the church, from 295 to 210;

A proposed change in the frequency of synod meetings from every three years to every two;

Possible changes in the method used to elect a purlamete, presently chosen by a select representative known as the electoral committee;

Summer Work Means Winter Studies

Joan McCormick, left, and Cindy George, who work together as counsellors aboard the Mv. Kahloke, both plan to leave this city to further their education. After two years at Victoria College, Joan starts this September on a two-year course in dental hygiene at University of Toronto. Cindy, who has completed one year at Victoria College will make the now familiar trip to Vancouver once more, this time to enter the September nursing class at Vancouver General Hospital. British Columbia Toll Authority employs 26 young women working toward higher education on its ferries during the summer.

In his very own uniform is Paul Rothe who is working for the municipal government of Oak Bay for the summer. Paul has completed his degree of Bachelor of Physical Education at UBC but will return for a year of teacher training this September. To keep himself busy, Paul donates his time Tuesday and Thursday evenings to a gymnastic program held in Carnarvon Park in conjunction with the YMCA for any children who wish to attend.

In smart grey skirts and green blazers, their uniforms as tourist counsellors aboard ferries operated by the British Columbia Toll Authority ferry system, are, from the left, Wendy Martin, 19, who will return to Victoria College this September for her second year of arts and science; Linda Bergstrom, 19, who has taken her first year at Victoria College and eventually hopes to specialize in kindergarten teaching; Bobbi James, 20, who will take another year of teacher training at Victoria College before spending a year at Essondale learning to teach emotionally-disturbed children; Sharon Ralph, 20, who will continue to take courses in teaching primary grades when she returns this fall for her third year at Victoria College, and Lyn Trevena, 20, who, having completed two years of education at college, is off to Vancouver to do some teaching herself this year.

Hundreds of young men and women in this city literally "work their way through college" by accepting summer employment in a wide variety of fields. Money they earn goes a fair way toward paying fees and supplying spending money, even if parents must still advance board money to keep land-

Young people on this page happen to work in various departments of three different levels of government — municipal, provincial and federal. Many others have found summer employment in downtown stores, restaurants, motels, tourist attractions and in the communications field, with newspapers and on radio and television.

Whatever the work and whatever the pay, you can be sure that it is money well spent by the employer and well saved by the employee when it is earmarked for a university education!

Four young women who are working in the department of education at the Parliament Buildings this summer are, from the left, Janice Hickman, who took first year college at Neuchatel, Switzerland, her second at Victoria College, and now goes to University of British Columbia where she will follow a course in honors French; Carolyn McCammon, who, after two years at Victoria College is making the change to UBC to take an honors course in chemistry toward a Bachelor of Science; Jay Botterell who returns to Dalhousie University to continue her history major, and Susie Foster, who is entering third year in the education faculty, and will join Janice and Carolyn in their first venture to UBC.

Also employed in the department of education are, from the left, Judy Taylor, Judith Baines and Beth Boyle. Judy will continue studies toward a BA degree during her third year at Victoria College. Judith, who led the freshman class at the college this year will continue there in her second year of arts and science and eventually take an honors course in English, as will Beth.

Managing to look official even with jackets off are these young men who are working as customs excise examiners this summer. From the left: Don Shea, who will take his fourth year arts and science at Victoria College this year and plans to go on into dentistry; John Hadfield, who will enter his third year at the college; Ted Polland, who, armed with a BA in sociology and psychology from Victoria College, enters the law faculty at UBC this year; Bernard Earthy, who, with the same degree, will continue at Victoria College for a year of teacher training; Sandy Pogson, who will enter his second year of medicine at UBC; Brian Wilson, who will near his goal of teaching English and history during his third year of arts and science at Victoria College, and Joe Haegert, the only married man in the group, who goes into third year of medicine at UBC.

Natives Knit Natural Wools Into Sweaters That Last

By Penny Saver

Penny went touristing the other day in a store which carries mainly Indian sweaters, moccasins and totem poles. When owner told me that some Victorians have had their sweaters for 30 years, and are only now bringing them in to take advantage of store's repair service—I decided that here was a penny saver!

To give me the whole story of the sweaters, the owner took me to look at heaps of raw wool in the back of the store. Indian women from Victoria to Nanaimo buy their wool from the company, make it into yarn and create their own patterns—so no two are ever the same.

Wool is not dyed before being made into sweater, Natural colors of the sheep, such as yellow-white, grey-brown or dark grey, provide the contrast for the patterns.

Natural lanolin left in the wool makes it soft as down and almost self cleaning. Shop owner told me that a sweater with a large stain on it, put in the closet in the spring and taken out when summer is over, will be virtually spot free.

When sweaters are brought to the store after knitting, they are graded and priced. Quality of wool and size of the sweater give a price range from $27 to $35 for adults.

Children's sweaters are about $7.50 and are available in sizes for one-year-olds and up.

Right now there is even a dinky little sweater made by a six-year-old Indian girl for a doll!

People with a passion for being "outfitted" will find mitts, socks and toques or berets also made of this raw wool. Warm and cozy, mitts will have a softening effect on your hands because of the built-in lanolin treatment. They are priced from $2 to $3.50, while socks are $2.50 to $5.

Two types of hats—a French-Canadian style toque and a not-so-Parisian beret (more for the curler than the fashion model) may be bought for $1 or prices up to $3.75.

He said that while experi-ments similar to those at the university have been taking place for some years at Cam-bridge University and in Stock-holm, the Edmonton experi-ments have progressed fauthor ments have progressed farther. FIRST KNOWN BIRTH

Dr. Callaghan said the successful birth of the lamb was the first known one from an artificial placenta. Dr. E. A. Maynes of Toronto.

a member of the research group said in an interview there is "a pile of problems" between the successful birth of the artificially-sustained lamb and use of an artificial placenta with a human child. The group already has spent five years and used $150,000 worth of grants and equipment from the federal and provincial governments and the Alberta Heart Foundation in the project. A new series of such experi-ments is to begin early next year. Lambs are used in the experiments because in the foetal stages they are about the same size as humans. The lamb was removed from its mother a week prematurely after 140 days of gestation. Like all mammalian new-born young, it was not breathing when born. Still unbreathing, it was put nto the artificial placenta, into the artificial placenta, which looks like a plastic flying saucer. The placenta sustained the lamb's respiratory functions for 40 minutes. The lamb was then born and allowed to begin breathing. (New born humans are slapped at birth to start them breathing). The artificial placenta, jammed with wires and tubes, contained a glucose solution in which the lamb floated. The glucose solution was an artifi-cial counterpart of the embryorent me fluid in which an animal foetus floats. The lamb was fed intravenously in the placenta and at times drank some of the glucose solution. Dr. Maynes said in the distant future an artificial pla-centa might sustain life in an infant born before 28 weeks of gestation have passed. Such in-tants invariably die at present. Satellite Bill Passed

MOSCOW (UPI) - Premier

Nikita Khrushchev, raising the stakes for a Berlin settlement in the wake of Russia's new space feats, demanded today that U.S., British and French troops get out of Berlin. He withdrew an earlier offer to let smaller NATO countries station troops in Berlin.

The jubilant Soviet leader, addressing a Red Square rally in honor of the Soviet space twins, also threatened anew to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany, but he did not set a deadline.

For the first time, however,

Khrushchev spelled out a re-fusal to permit NATO troops to participate, even under United Nations auspices.

The refusal was a sudden switch from a proposal made by Khrushchev last month that the Soviet Union would be willing to have a joint NATO-Warsaw pact force keep the peace in West Berlin. Khrushchev's switch was aken to mean he now was prepared to concede only a neu-tral force in the city under U.N. command to replace western allied troops under a Berlin settlement.

YOU NAME IT-SHE'S GOT IT

ARTHUR MAYSE

The average British Columbia resort owner has a short and uncertain season. It gathers headway through June, remains brisk most years during July and August, and after the Labor Day weekend, diminishes to a trickle.

Prolonged bad weather can play hob with his returns. So can transportation tieups, war scares, poor fishing, woods fires, and such current counter attractions as a world fair and a sequence of centenniai year entertainments.

I would bleed for him more freely, though, if he would spend less time grumbling about his real and fancied troubles and more in policing his trade for the few operators whose rural slums are a blotch on the B.C. tourist industry's otherwise good record.

Every business has its sharks, tourism included. Too often, a joint of the sort I laid out for you Thursday—with those four government stars on its sign—is the stars on its sign—is the stars on its sign—is the stars of the sta run as a coney-catcher, with minimum service and up-keep, to supplement an al-ready-adequate family inl'm sorry for these lame ducks, especially in a year when 'Vacancy' signs have been more the rule than the exception. But, hard as this viewpoint may seem, they don't belong in tourism, and the industry would be healthler without them.

Most of the few who operate such traps, however, aren't predators but men and women striving, sometimes desperately, to wring a living from a tricky trade they should never have invaded. Some of them stagger along under a crushing mortgage load. When they collapse, other cash poor Most of the few who opercollapse, other cash-poor optimists with the same dream of easy money are waiting to take over. I have even known properties to change hands sight-unseen.

than their government has so far seen fit to give them. Also, the public-on-holiday deserves a better brand of protection.

There's nothing wrong with our present star system of ratings, if applied with impartiality and sound judgment. It should and could, at a glance and with reasonable accuracy, allow any tourist to choose his lodging acording to his purse or his inclinations.

No doubt it would work No doubt it would work more effectively if given teeth through compulsory licensing and grading, but I would advocate this only if the existing system of voluntary co-operation falls after an overhaul. Lord knows, we have a sufficiency of licences and laws to bedevil us!

Here's what I do suggest:
Retention of the star rat-

Retention of the star rat-ing method on its present voluntary basis.

Brisker policing of the resort trade by its members within their associations.

Appointment by government of enough inspectors to check every lodge, cot-tage resort and camp in British Columbia at least nce each year. Inspections so tough and inspections so tough and thorough that four, three, two, one or zero stars before a resort's name in the B.C. Government Travel Bureau directory will mean exactly what they're supposed to mean.

An attitude that says in effect, "These folks are having a rough time so let's give them a break," defeats the purpose of inspection.

A note of cheer: Nova Scotla was faced by this same problem, and is in a fair way to licking it. British Columbia can, too.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Materialize Garden Plans By Starting Action Now

Planning is an expression which has been sadly overworked. Nevertheless it is something we must have in gardening if we are to obtain fine results and reach the goals we have envisioned. Most of us, I think, are next week or next year gardeners, putting our good ideas into pigeon-holes for action at some future date.

Too late we see where we have missed our opportunity of the properture of the properture of the sadly for end of year color in the foliage is torn off in a late fall gale.

Although the list of hydrangeas is sufficient to fill a good sized book, one other should be mentioned, and that is the climbing hydrangea which does so well here on walls facing north-east.

HOUSING HINTS

Q. Can a realtor help you when considering building or buying a house?

A. He certainly can. For example, even when you're just purchasing a lot, unless you're quite familiar with the value of the property and the procedures involved, you stand to lose more than you gain by ignoring the services of a realtor. His knowledge can save you time, trouble, and very often, money. He has a listing of available properties and knows all about the actual
